Brand New Book  Print on Demand .From ancient times the Rsis or great Sages, in composing their works, drew from a fount of Wisdom that embraces the knowledge of the spiritual and scientific laws that regulate the micro and macrocosm. After a profound research and consequent self-realization, the Rsis discovered that the first cause of human suffering rests on ignorance (avidya) of one s own real nature, which is Completeness, Synthesis and Unity. In this context takes its place the Yoga darsana, one of the six points of view of the Indian philosophy based on the Vedas, and codified by PATANJALI in his work which was given the name of Yogadarsana or Yogasutra. Faithful to traditional Knowledge, in his sutras, PATANJALI posits the problem of kaivalya, liberation from the becoming of prakrti (universal substance). Patanjali describes, we may say, in a scientific way, the means to realize a process of coordination, integration, mastery, transmutation and transcendence of our psychic and imprisoning energies so as to burn all the obstacles that hinder the state of kaivalya or isolated Unity. Thus this opus, which can be defined as alchemical, does not speak of inhibition or psychological flights, but of solution and integration of the process-becoming (samsara). In his Translation and Commentary of the Yogasutra, RAPHAEL is faithful to the Tradition. So the work can be comprehended in its appropriate spiritual, philosophical and ethical dimensions. In particular, the Commentary, is of great importance and efficacy because it brings to light aspects and connections that are not readily apparent in the text. At the same time Raphael utilizes a conceptual methodology befitting the Western forma mentis.
